BOURBONS MAKE THEIR PLANS FOR FINAL CAMPAIGN

First of Series of 32 Meetings to Be Held at Waialua on October 21

A clash of oratory—but doubtless a harmonious clash—is to feature the final night of the general election campaign if the Democrats decide to hold their last big rally at Aala park on Monday evening, November 6.

At a meeting on Sunday the members of the Bourbon central committee and the candidates mapped out a tentative program of campaign meetings which set apart Aala park as the place for the final rally. According to the program of Republican meetings, published in the Star-Bulletin last Saturday, and which is permanent, the G. O. P. candidates also will hold their final rally at Aala park on the same evening as the meeting of the Bourbons.

Prof. W. A. Bryan, chairman of the Democratic central committee, says that the supervisors have granted the Bourbon candidates the use of the Beretania street portion of the park and that, according to present plans, a "three-ring circus" will be in order, including a spacious grandstand and plenty of comfortable seats for the voters.

The program of meetings adopted Sunday, while tentative and subject to change at any time, is likely to become permanent. Another meeting of the central committee with the candidates will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening at Democratic headquarters, Collins building, King street, when the program again will be gone over.

AMBROSE PATTERSON, ARTIST, LOVES COLOR Painter's Eye For Life Shown In Current Exhibition

Delights in Street-Scenes, in Night-Lights and Movement Created by Honolulu's Cosmopolitan Population—Exhibit Proves Popular

AMBROSE PATTERSON, the Australian artist, who has adopted Hawaii as his home, delights in color—the gay, often glaring colors found in the peasant costumes of all countries, and a distinct note in every Honolulu street scene which is at all representative of this "melting-pot."

These photographs show the artist and (above) one of his characteristic paintings—the Japanese lantern parade of 1915. Reproduction in newspaper columns of course robs this of its chief distinction—the sense of swift movement and color combined in an impressionistic whole.

Even in its brief hour of existence, the lantern parade was thoroughly studied by the artist. He walked with the marching Japanese from Aala park to the capitol, making notes and sketches as he hurried through the crowded streets.

The pastels, of which there are a large number, have attracted especial attention since they form a much stronger element in the artist's work than at his first exhibition here some months ago. He is at his best in depicting dawn, evening and nocturnal bits along the Oahu seashores, in marked but successful contrast to his pulsating street scenes. He has ventured also into the domain of the sea, one or two of these canvases having been received with much favor by the visitors at the studio.

Last week there was a throng of appreciative callers at the Patterson studio, between Alakea and Richards streets, above King, in the rear of the old Allen premises. The exhibit will continue all this week. Many Honoluluans are congratulating the artist on the quality of his work.

(Associated Press by Federal Wireles)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—Navy officials here anticipated that the battleships authorized by the last congress for 1917 will be even larger than had been planned. Their displacement will be increased to 38,000 tons to carry this great weight of metal, the heaviest in all the navies of the world.

JAPANESE NAVAL MANEUVERS STARTED

(Special Cable to Nippon Jiji)
TOKIO, Japan, Oct. 15.—Naval maneuvers on an extended scale began today off Ushioaki, in western Japan. The first part of the maneuvers will consist of a sham battle between the two fleets, after which one of the fleets will attempt a landing on Ise Bay, which will be defended by the other fleet. After the maneuvers, which will last until October 25, both fleets will assemble in Tokyo Bay for a great naval review.

EUREKA, Cal., Oct. 15.—The steamer Bear, which went ashore last June south of this port, has been abandoned by the interests which have been attempting to salvage her hull and boilers. Her position, and the damage she has suffered make it inadvisable to spend any more money and labor upon her.

War Orphan Benefit Recital Noteworthy

Mrs. A. B. Ingalls, Mr. Frank Moss and Miss Clemence Gifford Present Program

The recital at the Hawaiian Opera House on Saturday night arranged by Mrs. A. B. Ingalls for the benefit of war babies deserved a far larger audience than was present. With two very excellent artists and a promising beginner, and with a program which offered many interesting moments, the attraction should have drawn twice or thrice the rather slim number which attended.

Neither Mrs. Ingalls, violinist, nor Mr. Frank Moss, pianist, needs extended reference. Both have established themselves surely in the esteem of Honolulu music-lovers through consistently sincere and skilful performance. Of their program Saturday night it might be said that there were some disappointments and many good things. Mrs. Ingalls opened the evening with Max Bruch's "Concerto in G Minor," which, while a favorite with violinists and an interesting composition, particularly as an opening number given before a rather sluggish Saturday night crowd. Much of it falls flat upon the ears of the average audience, nor does it key the lay-hearers up to a pitch of interest. Considerable of the phrasing is uninspired and though as a whole it serves to bring out some of Bruch's graceful invention, it is not the happiest choice with which to open before a Honolulu audience.

Caesar Franck's Sonata in A Major was the most ambitious offering of the evening, with Mrs. Ingalls and Mr. Moss joining efforts. The allegro movement and the final cheerful allegretto are the most popular of the formulae. This sonata is of the modern French school, full of Franck's characteristic chromatic involutions. It presents difficulties both for violin and piano which only competent technique can overcome. The rendition by the Honolulu artists was most praiseworthy.

Mr. Moss's three piano solo numbers were well received. They were followed by three piano-violin combinations, featuring Kreisler arrangements: "Moment Musical" (Schubert-Kreisler) was the best of these.

Miss Clemence Gifford made her debut in local music circles with a group of songs by Mrs. Edith Simonds, lately a visitor here. Miss Gifford displayed a pleasing soprano of mezzo quality, though with more training to increase the range it should develop into a true soprano. The songs were short and of little demand on vocal powers, but certain good qualities which Miss Gifford's voice showed indicate that she is ready for study in more complex vocal compositions. She has a welcome clearness of enunciation and a sympathetic quality of tone. "Solitude" and "The Thrush at Eve" were perhaps the best of her songs.

COMMITTEE FAVORS RESUMPTION OF OLD NAME MASONIC LODGE

(Associated Press by Federal Wireles)
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 14.—The Grand Lodge of Masons of the State of California, by its jurisprudence committee, of which Justice F. M. Angellotti is chairman, has approved the petition of the Oceanic Masonic Lodge of Honolulu to resume the original name of the lodge.

C. G. Bockus, last master of the old and first of the new one, said this morning that the recommendation had been made by the committee on jurisprudence, according to the despatch, but that there was no evidence that it had been passed by the grand lodge. He believes the annual session of the latter body is over and says further information will be received if the name has been changed.

CHOLERA SUSPECTS TAKEN FROM STRANDED MARU

(Associated Press by Federal Wireles)
PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Oct. 16.—The cholera which has been raging in Japan and in the Philippines is believed to have reached the United States. From the steamer Panama Maru, which is still grounded on Thompson's Spit, 13 suspects were taken from the stowage and have been landed at the Diamond Point quarantine station.

The government officials are maintaining a strict quarantine and the suspects taken from the Panama Maru have been isolated pending careful bacteriological investigations.

The Manila Maru, which arrived here after the Panama Maru went aground, has also been detained at the Diamond Point quarantine station and is being carefully watched for cholera suspects.

(Associated Press by Federal Wireles)

U. S. CONTRACTS IN MONGOLIA NOT PROTESTED?

Japan Admits Making Inquiry Into Concessions Granted American Contractors

(Associated Press by Federal Wireles)
TOKIO, Japan, Oct. 16.—The foreign office here yesterday issued a statement in which it was officially admitted that the Mikado's government has asked the government of China for an explanation of the concession granted by China to an American concern, for the reconstruction of a section of the famous grand canal of China.

The statement continues with the assertion that while the inquiry was made of the Chinese authorities, the Japanese officials have not in any way protested against the railroad project of the same company.

HUGHES AND ROOSEVELT SCORE ADMINISTRATION

(Associated Press by Federal Wireles)
LINCOLN, Nebraska, Oct. 15.—I agree that the proper policies to be followed by any administration in this country are policies that will keep this country out of war, but the sort of thing that we have been having from the present administration are policies that are not calculated to keep us out of war, but better calculated to involve us in wars of various kinds," declared Charles E. Hughes in the course of his address here last night.

Mr. Hughes reviewed the Mexican situation, referring to the president's statement of yesterday that it is necessary to keep the federal militia along the border line to prevent trouble. "Is it keeping us out of war, when we have to have all our army and most of our militia under arms to preserve our own borders from invasion?" he asked.

Protective Policy Needed
The Republican candidate made six addresses during the afternoon and evening, in the course of which he reviewed practically all the issues of the campaign.

At Wilkes Harre yesterday Theodore Roosevelt spoke to an enthusiastic crowd. The greater part of his address was in criticism of the Adamson act and the surrender of the president before a threat of force.

He also pointed out the fact that the present prosperity of the country is an artificial one, certain to be followed by a period of the greatest depression unless action be taken to protect the nation and its industries.
